

Northern Health School

Northern Health School is a Ministry of Education funded school set up with the aim of maintaining the education of students who are unable to attend their regular school due to their high health needs. A nurturing school for students with health issues.

We are a large, geographically dispersed school with sites across the North Island, from Gisborne and Taranaki to the far north (Kaitia).

We have two tasks:

- Support student learning
- Assist students to return to their regular school as their health allows

We are one of three New Zealand health schools providing community and hospital based teaching to school aged students who are too unwell to attend their regular school.
